

Henri Pigeat

Henri Pigeat is a press chief, French journalist and academic. He manages Ilissus Publishing house, which he founded in 2002. Since 2003 he is chairing the Training Center for Journalists (CFJ). He has been the head of Agence France-Presse (AFP) for more than ten years. His professional interests are in the sphere of media, communication and journalism. He is strongly engaged with topics researching the use and implementation of information technology and digital media systems in media. Mr. Pigeat is author of numerous articles and publications on the digitalization of media, the international flow of news and media and journalism ethics.