

Piritta Sorsa

Piritta Sorsa holds a Masters in Business Science from the Turku School of Economics and received a PhD in economics from the Geneva Institute for International Relations. She is Head of Division at OECD dealing with analyzing state economies. Before joining the OECD, she held positions at the IMF where for fourteen years she was dealing with developing economies - leading IMF missions in Honduras, Slovenia, and Montenegro as well as being a resident representative of the IMF in Bulgaria from 2001 to 2003. Before that she was senior economist at the World Bank and The United Nations Conference on Trade and Development.